

Time.165

Abstract

A method for generating code sequences having good correlation properties comprising steps of selecting a code length comprising a number of chips, selecting a ruler which defines the position of non-zero values within the chips, and 5 overlaying the non-zero values with an amplitude pattern.